I saw the review for "Beneath a Meth Moon" in the Sunday LA Times, bought the book on a Monday and finished the book on a Tuesday the same week. What a rush from the words of the gifted author, Jacqueline Woodson. The book is presented in short chapters, giving the feeling of the jumpiness meth induces in its users.

About Beneath a Meth Moon. Hurricane Katrina took her mother and granmother. And even though Laurel Daneau has moves on to a new life—one that includes a new best friend, a spot on the cheerleading squad, and dating the co-captain of the football team—she can’t get past the pain of that loss. Then her new boyfriend introduces her to meth, and Laurel is instantly seduced by its spell, the way it erases, even if only temporarily, her memories.

The overall theme of the novel "beneath a meth moon" is that you should never give up on yourself no matter how many different things get in your way. One symbol in the novel is the moon it symbolizes the drug meth that Laurel gets addicted to. Another symbol is the murals Moses painted on walls symbolizing the life of the people that have passed.
