Katie Fforde is my go-to author in the romance genre. Mostly because her books are undemanding and inoffensive in the sort of 'romance' they depict. Actually, the romance plot is quite often the least convincing part of her books, and 'Practically Perfect' was no exception.

I don't like to give too much away for those who haven't read PRACTICALLY PERFECT, but, as in all good chic-lit novels, there are issues beyond romance including friendships and family. Katie Fforde writes stand-alone books, each having different themes and new characters. And each is well worth reading.

I loved my daughter ' s house. She shared it with a work colleague and it was tiny but perfect. A sitting room, little kitchen and two bedrooms. Next door to her, in the porch was a row of three sets of wellingtons. Small, smaller and absolutely tiny. I knew I had to write a book that involved that row of cottages and that row of boots.

Its author, Katie Fforde, has done the incredible and written a romance with an actual wet dishrag as its heroine. She gives the dishrag a name ("Sophie") and anthropomorphizes it to some extent--it didn't do that well in school, we're told, but it is charming and pretty--but these facts should not be allowed
